WOODMEN ASSOCIATION MEETS

C. T. Heydecker Unfolds Plan By Which He Claims the Order Can Be Saved

ASS'N OFFICERS ELECTED

Will Endeavor to Induce Head Camp to Reconsider Its Decision In Regard to the Recent Rate Raise

The Lake county Woodman protective association, a temporary organization formed some weeks ago, was made a permanent organization by a meeting held in Waukegan Saturday last, at which delegates from the majority of Woodmen camps throughout the county were present.

The object of the association is to work for the interests of the Modern Woodmen, endeavoring to find a solution of the rate question if possible, and to do all in its power to further the welfare of the members of the order.

The following officers were elected: President, C. T. Heydecker, Waukegan; Secretary, Joseph C. James, Antioch; Treasurer, Thomas Strang, Wadsworth; Board of Directors, James P. Sherman, Grayslake; W. E. Miller, Libertyville; William Hoban, Waukegan; Herman Holte, Prairie View.

Attorney C. T. Heydecker was the principal speaker and in his address told of his trip to Rock Island a few days ago. He unfolded at this meeting the plan he had suggested at that time, and expressed the opinion that this plan or one very similar to it, is the only thing which can save the order from destruction. His plan as set forth seemed to meet with approval and indications are that it will be indorsed by the association.

His plan is as follows: "From a deep study of the existing situation it appears that there are but two courses to be taken if the Woodmen organization is to be preserved. One plan is the increased rates over those being charged at the present time and the other is an increase in the number of assessments. Now if the head camp will consider this proposition it will answer all purposes; if it is necessary to increase the rates let us not drive out the old men by increasing their assessment to an exorbitant amount which they can not pay. Let the society provide that when a member reaches the age of 45 years, provided that he has been in the order ten years or more that he may pay an assessment of one dollar monthly and have the rest charged to his certificate, to be taken out at his death. This will allow a surplus to be piled up if such a plan is desired as the money that will be taken from the total amount of the certificate will be the same as if it were being paid into the order in cash. It is merely a matter of borrowing money from his certificate to assist him in paying his assessment.

The following resolutions (by J. C. James) were adopted: Resolved that the Lake County Woodmen Protective association, believing that the rates to be adopted January 1, 1913, are too high, put itself on record as ready to join with other associations of a similar nature to call a special meeting of the head camp for the express purpose of a readjustment of rates.

(By Paul MacGuffin) Resolved that all members of the Modern Woodmen of America be urged to stick with the order and work for an adequate adjustment of rates.

A constitution was adopted and all camps in Lake county were requested to raise 10 cents per member as soon as convenient and send the same to Treasurer Strang, the amount thus raised to be used in defraying the expenses of the association in its efforts.

The next meeting will be held at Grayslake on April 30, at 1:00 o'clock p. m., at which time it is hoped that every camp in the county will be represented.

CHASE AFTER A MAD DOG

Animal is Shot In Antioch After Chase of Several Hours

A chase of several hours duration, beginning at Monville and ending at Antioch resulted in the final capture of a mad dog that was running at large over the country. Tuesday about noon the dog, a large black and white spotted animal, whose owner is unknown, entered the yard of Lee Tweed at Monville and pounced upon his dog.

While Tweed was getting a gun the dog escaped and hastily saddling his horse he gave chase. The animal by that time had entered the yard of Bert Galiger, bitten his dog and started away taking a northerly and westerly course. After following it about fifteen miles through fields and yards and often doubling on the route, Tweed lost sight of the dog and as his horse was fast becoming tired out he was obliged to return home. Galiger then took his horse and buggy and the two men again took up the chase. Reaching Antioch about five o'clock they were making enquiries about the streets when they espied the canine coming in town from the north, but although they were able to keep it in sight they were unable to shoot it until just as it was entering the yard of Frank Garland on Victoria street. Then having a good range they quickly dispatched the creature.

It is known to have bitten several dogs around Monville and Fox Lake and at least two, whose ownership is unknown, on the streets of Antioch. Some of the Monville people, have already had their dogs disposed of.

INDICATIONS POINT TOWARD REAPPORTIONMENT

With every indication pointing to a reapportionment of the state of Illinois into new senatorial and congressional districts, the importance of the election for state senator and the need of Lake county of a representative and senator is apparent.

It is now almost an assured fact that one of the first moves of the new senate and assembly of the state will be to draft a new district map of the state, and change the boundary lines of practically every district within the confines of the state.

With that in view the danger of the linking of Lake county with the northern portion of Chicago and Cook county should awaken every voter of the county to the possibility that Lake county would be hitched onto a district comprising part of Cook county and Chicago, thus eliminating this county from state politics forever.

With Chicago in the same district as Lake county, it would be almost impossible for a Lake county man to gain votes enough to carry an election, owing to the fact that the greater number of votes would be from Chicago, thus assuring a Chicago man the position of senator or representative in the general assembly from this district.

If there is not a friend at court in the next session to fight the battles of Lake county, there is nothing to stop such a move. Lake county now has a candidate for state senator in the field, Paul MacGuffin of Libertyville, whose campaign is arousing the greatest interest all through the district, composed of Boone, Lake and McHenry counties. While there is little danger that MacGuffin will not win in the race, still every voter of Lake county should consider, when he casts his ballot on April 9th, that he is voting to sanction or helping to stop, the linking of Lake county with Chicago, and the possibility of the death of all candidates from this county reaching their goal.

BOY WOUNDED BY CARRYING TOY PISTOL

Because he was carrying a gun to school John Dudek, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Anton Dudek of North Chicago, is now in a very serious condition and the attending physicians fear that blood poisoning will set in. The boy was carrying the gun in his pocket, while he was around the school house and in some manner or other it was discharged, tearing a hole in his hand. The gun was what is called a blank pistol and the discharge of the powder and wadding into the boy's hand may prove to be very serious. The physicians state that there is a great possibility for blood poisoning to set in and if it does they are in fear that the boy will lose his hand.

The boy is only 9 years old and how he happened to have the revolver in his possession is a mystery. His parents were not aware of the fact that he was carrying a gun to school with him. The accident occurred at the school house and has caused a great deal of excitement among the pupils and residents.

PROMINENT FARMER'S LETTER

In Which He Gives His Estimate of the Farmer Candidate for Governor

ENTHUSIASTIC FOR SMALL

Tells of His Progressiveness and His Public Spirit and Gives Him Credit for Much Good Work

The following splendid letter comes from Delphis Mear of Ashkum. It has such a patriotic ring that we take the liberty of publishing it. Mr. Mear is one of the most prominent farmers in eastern Illinois and the tone of his letter is in keeping with hundreds of others from farmers all over Illinois. The letter is as follows:

"Ashkum, Ill., March 18, 1912.—In reply to your letter of a recent date in regard to supporting the Hon. Len Small for governor, I will say: I am for Mr. Small with both feet and I will do all I can to help nominate him and, if nominated, I will help elect him governor of Illinois.

"I have known Mr. Small personally since 1884. I have been employed by Mr. Small and also his father Dr. Small. Being only a boy at the time, I was treated with the utmost kindness and consideration. I also have been an exhibitor at the District fair at Kankakee and always found Mr. Small a straightforward business manager. Speaking about the fair, I want to stop here and make a few remarks. How well I remember when the fair was owned by a syndicate composed mostly of farmers and was patronized only by a handful of people. You could go in at any time and there wouldn't be anything to obstruct your view from any and all parts of the grounds. But when Mr. Small got the management of it, it ceased to be a county fair and it is now one of the greatest District fairs in the United States. It would make a good many state fairs look like '80 cents.' (Please excuse the slang.) And that is not all he has done for Kankakee. He has also been a great factor in the banks, street cars and the great institutions of Kankakee. I think it is a credit to all the citizens of Kankakee, as well as the farmers, to support and elect a man of Mr. Small's ability. Not only the people of Kankakee, but of all Illinois should help elect a man of Mr. Small's character. And I also feel confident that they would do so if they were more acquainted with his personal life.

"I feel it would be a personal wrong for any man, at least in Kankakee county, not to appreciate the honor of supporting a man like Mr. Small, who has done so much for his home town. Let's join hands and say: 'Hurrah for Len. Small, our next governor of the great State of Illinois.' I remain, 'Yours very truly, 'DELPHIS MEAR.'"

WANT FARMERS TO ACT AS GAME WARDENS

A movement has been started through out the state to have the farmer vested with the power of the political game warden. The game warden at the present time resides in the city and he is not in a position, so say the supporters of this plan, to protect the birds as the farmer is. The greater part in fact almost all of the violation against the game laws is committed in the country and the agriculturalists are in a better position to do the work than any body else.

It is claimed that the average farmer appreciates the value of the birds in destroying insects, and will not be backward in prosecuting any who kill the feathered tribe in defiance of the law. It is recommended that a few farmers in each township be given police powers with authority to arrest pot hunters and trespassers.

One Road to Knowledge. A Persian philosopher being asked by what method he had acquired so much knowledge, answered: "By not being prevented by shame from asking questions when I was ignorant."

REASONS FOR MacGUFFIN

Why Lake County's Candidate for Senator Should Win

Should Lake county support its only candidate for the Republican nomination for State Senator? Is Lake county entitled to any recognition by the republican party of the Eighth Senatorial district? Does a man from McHenry county who has during the past four years occupied the office of state senator—your state senator—deserve re-nomination with the following record:

A. J. Olson voted for—The deep waterway bill, which would saddle a tax of $215,000 upon Lake county.—Senate bill No. 175, creating a county superintendent of roads who would be a civil engineer student from the University of Illinois, and have charge of your roads, taking away the power of your township highway commissioners.—Senate bill 267, creating a state tax commission. This bill provides for three tax commissioners who would draw $7500. per year each, appointed by the governor. At any time, on complaint, a special assessor could be sent from any part of the state to re-assess your property. The powers of your township assessor, county board of review and state board of equalization would be abolished.—Senate bill 414 providing that the certificates of teachers would be issued at Springfield, taking away the powers of your county superintendent of schools. He killed in committee, house bill 540, after promising the members of the House and Senate who had helped pass bill 55 that he would give bill 540 a chance in the Senate. Bill 55 which is the anti-tuberculin bill and prohibited Chicago from enforcing ordinances requiring the tuberculin testing of cattle, could not have passed unless the men who voted for it, were promised that bill 540, which was a bill to keep out of the state diseased cattle, should have a chance. Bill 55 passed. Bill 540 was killed by Olson after he had consulted the cow dealers and cow shippers, who were opposed to giving the dairymen the protection which would have been afforded them, had bill 540 become a law.

Lake county has the votes without any assistance from McHenry to nominate and elect a state senator. Paul MacGuffin is the candidate and wants to go to Springfield, to the senate. A large number of the leading republicans of Lake county have encouraged him and promised him their support the same as they would have done to any other young, clean and ambitious man in Lake county.

It is said that he cannot accomplish as much, cannot "get" as much for Lake county as some man from McHenry. If that is so the more reason that Lake county should commence to push its young men into the arena, where they can learn to "get" as much as a McHenry county man, because Lake county may sometime really need something. The next session of legislature will divide Illinois into new congressional districts and into new senatorial districts. Shall Lake County have no voice—no vote—but say to McHenry "by your leave Sir, where do you place us? we thank you that we are—not that we have. Wake up Lake county republicans, you have a candidate who can win. Put your shoulder to the wheel.

CHITTENDEN IS OPPOSING CLOW IN WARREN

It now develops that there is a hard scrap in Warren township for the office of supervisor, for while Freeman Clow formerly supervisor of the town won the nomination at the recent primary, it develops that Supervisor Ralph Chittenden is an independent candidate for the office.

Both men are strong in the town, shown by the fact that, two years ago, in the primary, Chittenden beat Clow, who was then supervisor; now after Chittenden has served two years, Clow comes out and beats Chittenden at the primary. All but about a hundred votes were out at the recent primary and the two candidates the nominee and the independent, are waging a hard battle to swing the balance of power to his standard. Likely at the election, practically every vote in the town will be out.

JUDGE CHARLES WHITNEY OUT FOR MacGUFFIN

"For a period of forty years the State Senatorship of this district has passed from Boone, to McHenry, to Lake. That is an established custom. By all former rights, Lake county is at this time entitled to the State Senatorship. That much must be granted, taking into consideration not only the custom of former years, but also the population, wealth and interests of this county. Then as to the men. I want some newspaper of this city to take issue with me on the man, Paul MacGuffin. I want them to talk about the candidate, not about Shurtleff. He is clean, honest, able and efficient. I defy a newspaper of this city to take issue with me on that question. We are entitled to the State Senatorship and Lake county presents a man that they are justly proud of."

—JUDGE CHARLES WHITNEY

LORIMER IS CLEARED BY COMMITTEE

Edward Hines Is Held Innocent of $100,000 Bribe Charges

THE VOTE STOOD 5 TO 3

Holds That No New Evidence Has Been Introduced Which Will Justify Reversal of Senate's Previous Action

The special investigating committee of the United States Senate Thursday adopted a sweeping vindication of Senator William Lorimer of Illinois.

By a vote of 5 to 3 the committee decided to report to the Senate that the charges against Senator Lorimer have not been sustained, that the evidence has disclosed no corruption in his election, and that despite the 5,000,000 words of evidence which it has heard, it has discovered nothing which would "justify a reversal of the solemn and deliberate judgement of the United States Senate rendered during the last session of the Sixty-First Congress, holding valid the election of William Lorimer as a Senator or the United States."

Edward Hines, the millionaire lumber man, referred to in the investigation as "the man who put Lorimer over," also got a vindication by the committee. It had been charged that Hines raised a corruption fund of $100,000 to elect Lorimer to the Senate. The majority repudiated that and passed a resolution that the evidence had shown that he did not raise or contribute any sum improperly.

The majority of the committee held that no new evidence had been adduced to justify a reversal of the Senate's previous action in Senator Lorimer's favor; that there was no evidence of a jackpot in the Illinois General Assembly in 1909 in connection with his election, and, finally, that no corrupt practices had been shown by the investigation.

The case will be squarely before the Senate probably next week, when a protracted debate will begin.

The basis of the committee's action was the plea raised by Lorimer's counsel that the previous action of the Senate bars reconsideration.

The majority report on the main proposition will be signed by Senators Dillingham, Gamble, Fletcher, Johnston and Jones, and the minority by Senators Kenyon, Kern and Lee.

Senator Jones was against Senator Lorimer on the first investigation. The final investigation he reversed his position and presented three resolutions to exonerate Lorimer.

JUDSON ROGERS DIES SUDDENLY AT MOLINE, KANSAS

Word was received here Wednesday telling of the death of Mr. Judson Rogers of Moline Kansas. The deceased is a brother of Miss Ida Rogers of this village who on Tuesday received a letter from him stating that he was not in the best of health, being troubled with indigestion, but was in hopes of being better as soon as it became warm weather, and in less than twenty-four hours this letter was followed by a telegram announcing his death. He was sixty-eight years of age and his demise leaves his sister the one surviving member of the family.

Although he has been a resident of Kansas for many years he is well known here having made frequent visits to this place since his departure. He was numbered among the old veterans having enlisted from Lake county.

Mr. Rogers is a brother-in-law of Mrs. Henry Sherwood of Lake Villa. Arrangements have been made to bring the remains back here for burial.

FIRE AT GURNEE STORE

Entire Stock is Ruined—Loss Estimated at Several Thousand

The store of Charles Barnstable at Gurnee was the scene of a disastrous fire early Sunday morning. It is believed to have started from an overheated stove pipe and the damage is estimated at several thousand dollars.

Barnstable had attended a Woodman meeting Saturday evening and did not arrive home until near midnight. He went into the store to see that everything was all right and to fix the fire and then went to the living rooms above. About one o'clock he was awakened to find the rooms full of smoke while the crackling of the flames could be distinctly heard in the store.

He hurriedly called up the operator at the farmers telephone exchange and asked that the alarm be spread and immediately one continuous ring was calling to every subscriber on the lines. In a remarkably short time help was coming from every direction. On account of the headway already gained by the flames the fight was a hard one but after a couple of hours their incessant labor began to tell and about daylight the last spark was extinguished.

The entire stock of merchandise was ruined either by fire or water, and considerable damage was done to the building.

SHURTLEFF IS MISREPRESENTED BY WAUKEGAN SUN

Paul MacGuffin, Lake County's candidate for State Senator, and Jas. Woodman were in Antioch Thursday afternoon and held a meeting for the purpose of straightening out a few misrepresented facts in regard to the dairy question, and while on account of the almost impassable condition of the roads the audience was not as large as it would otherwise have been, those present profited much by the talk and the truths as revealed had a telling effect.

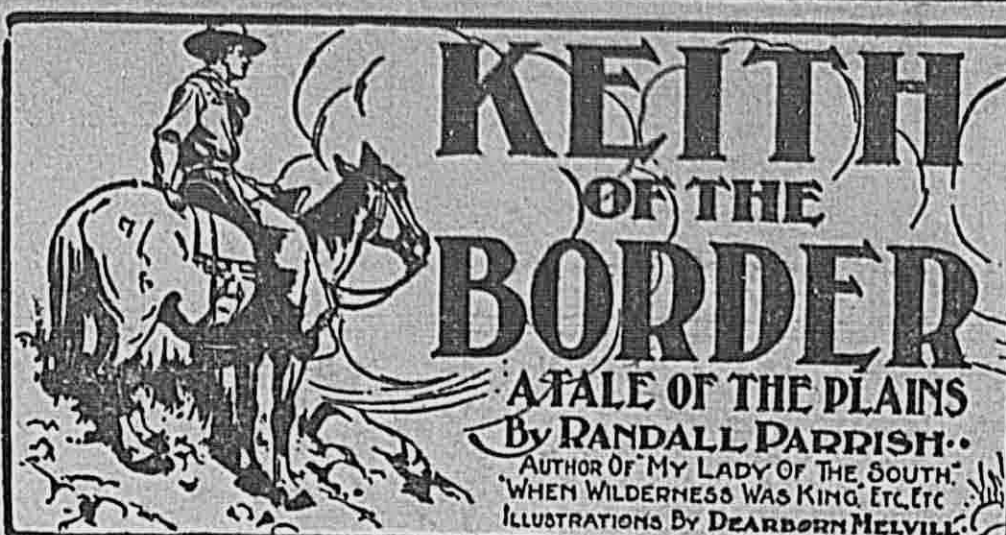

For several days previous it had been advertised that Edward D. Shurtleff would be present at this meeting and such was his intentions until Wednesday when he was summoned to Springfield to attend the special session of the legislature. Notwithstanding this fact however the Waukegan Sun of Thursday, comes out with the headline "Shurtleff Ducks Special Session to Work Campaign." Now if such were the case why did he disappoint the audiences at Antioch, Round Lake and other places? While that article may look good to the Olson supporters the News is in a position to say that Ed. Shurtleff was where duty called and was in attendance at the special session of the legislature at Springfield this week, regardless of what other engagements he was obliged to cancel.

MANY SEEK FLOWER

Edelweiss Grows Only on Sides of Mountain.

Blossom Is Responsible for Deaths of Many Climbers Every Year—Legend of the Coveted Posa Is Told.

Lucerne.—When the warm spring sun kisses the rugged slopes of the Alps the snow will gradually disappear. In the nooks and crannies of the rocks here and there will appear the shoots of a tiny plant. It will push its soft, velvety stems upward a few inches. Upon these fragile stalks later will appear dense clusters of white flowers—so white that they almost appear greenish in their purity of color. The heads of the flowers are covered with a fleecy substance, soft as down to the touch.

This modest little blossom is the edelweiss.

Every summer season intrepid mountaineers give up their lives to gather the edelweiss. It is precious because it is rare. It is desirable because it is difficult to obtain. For the edelweiss grows generally in the most inaccessible places. It nestles in the steep sides of the precipice and the chasm. Invigorated by the mountain air, intoxicated by the scenery, the climber beholds the blossom in its dangerous crevice. He determines to make his way to it and bear it away with him. Sometimes he succeeds in the quest, only to fall as he attempts to return. A loose stone that he has trusted as a foothold slips away. His hands are flung out to save himself. There is nothing secure to cling to. The end is deep down in the ravine below. The edelweiss has lured another to death because of his covetousness.

In a certain legend the edelweiss (noble white) is related to heaven, near which it grows. An angel, wearying of his celestial home, longed once to taste the bitterness of earth. She received permission to appear in the flesh again, but she found herself unprepared to mingle again with a world where her eyes beheld crime, sickness, poverty, oppression, misfortune and discontent. So she chose a home for herself high up in the Swiss Alps. There she could look about upon the world and yet dwell apart from

The Coveted Edelweiss.

it. The angel soul of the visitor illumined her face and transfigured her form to one of slender, bewitching beauty.

Comes one day a climber, more daring than others before him. The fastness, where she hides her loveliness is invaded by him. Having been seen by him her retreat soon is invaded by many men eager to behold her and from the thrill of beholding her, doomed to love her hopelessly. She is kind, but cold to all. Unable to endure the sight of one so beautiful and still not possess her, her admirers join in a prayer to heaven. They ask that since they may not claim her for their own they may at least be spared the sight of one so lovely. The prayer is answered. The angel is taken back to heaven. She leaves behind her human heart in the edelweiss as a memento of her earthly residence.

And so from an object of love itself, the edelweiss has come to be the symbol of love. The Swiss maiden to whom some swain has brought the edelweiss knows that he has risked his life to gather the tiny blossoms for her. Receiving them, she understands, because the mute appeal of the edelweiss is stronger than words.

Girls Steal a Bath.

Fort Worth, Tex.—Chief of Police Renfro and three policemen were called to a barber shop late at night to arrest burglars. With drawn revolvers they opened the door of a bath room where the "burglars" were hiding, and were amazed to find two pretty young women, nude, bathing in the tub. Feminine screams startled passersby. The two girls threw water into the chief's face and he beat a retreat. Later he arrested them for stealing a bath. They gave their names as Miss Kathryn Reid and Miss Jessie Hoover.

SYNOPSIS.

Jack Keith, a Virginian, now a border plainsman, is looking for roaming war parties of savages. He sees a wagon team at full gallop, pursued by men on horses. When Keith reaches the wagon the raiders have massacred two men and departed. He searches the victims' clothing and finds a woman's portrait. Keith is arrested at Carson City, charged with the murder of a man named Black Bart. A negro companion in his cell named Ned tells him that he knew the victim in Virginia. Ned says one of the murdered men was John Biley, the other Gen. Willis Walte, formerly a Confederate officer. The plainsman and Ned escape, and later the fugitives come upon a cabin and find its occupant to be a young girl, whom Keith thinks he saw at Carson City. The girl explains that she is in search of a brother who had deserted from the army, and that a Mr. Hawley induced her to come to the cabin while he sought her brother. Hawley appears, and Keith in hiding recognizes him as Black Bart. There is a terrific battle in the darkened room in which Keith is victor. Hawley is appropriated, and the girl who says that her name is Hope, joins in the escape. Keith explains his situation and the fugitives make for Fort Larned, where the girl is left with the hotel landlady. Miss Hope tells that she is the daughter of General Walte. Keith and Ned drift into Sheridan, where Keith meets an old friend, Dr. Fairbain. Keith meets the brother of Hope Walte. Under the assumed name of Fred Willoughby, and becomes convinced that Black Bart has some plot involving the two. Hope learns that Gen. Walte, who was thought murdered, is at Sheridan and goes there, where she is mistaken for Christie MacLair, the Carson City singer. Keith meets the real Christie MacLair, and finds that Black Bart has convinced her that there is a mystery in her life which he is going to turn to her advantage. The plainsman tells Hope Walte of her resemblance to Christie MacLair, and they decide that Fred Willoughby may hold the key to the situation. Keith finds Willoughby shot dead. Hope is told of the death of her brother. Keith fails to learn what representations Black Bart has made to Christie MacLair. Hope suggests that in order to learn the secret she must briefly impersonate the stage singer. Dr. Fairbain is in love with Christie MacLair and Keith induces him to detain her from the stage while Hope goes to the theater where she meets Black Bart, who thus deceives her. Hope, greatly alarmed, denounces General Walte and says Black Bart has stolen papers from him regarding an inheritance. Keith is informed that Christie MacLair's real name is Phyllis Gale and that she is the half sister of Hope. The latter has been carried away by Black Bart and his gang. Dr. Fairbain avows his love for Phyllis and she accepts him. Keith and his friends strike the trail of Black Bart. They find Hope has been taken back to the old cabin. The wilderness cabin is the scene of a fight in which Keith and his partners overcome their outlaw enemies. Black Bart and the plainsman meet in a duel for final accounting.

Keith wet his dry lips and spoke shortly:

"I reckon you know what this means, Hawley, and why I am here. We're Southerners both of us, and we settle our own personal affairs. You've got to fight me now, man to man."

The gambler glanced about him, and down at his horse. If he thought of flight it was useless. His lip curled with contempt.

"Damn you talking, Keith," he returned savagely. "Let's have it over with," and spurred his horse. The gun of the other came up.

"Wait!" and Hawley paused, dragging at his rein. "One of us most likely is going to die here; perhaps both. But if either survives he'll need a horse to get out of this alley. Dismount; I'll do the same; step away so the horses are out of range, and then we'll fight it out—is that square?"

Without a word, his eyes gleaming with cunning hatred, the gambler swung down from his saddle onto the sand, his horse interposed between him and the other. Keith did the same, his eyes peering across the back of his animal.

"Now," he said steadily, "when I count three drive your horse aside, and let go—are you ready?"

"Damn you—yes!"

"Then look out—one! two! three!"

The plainsman struck his horse with the quirt in his left hand and sprang swiftly aside so as to clear the flank of the animal, his shooting arm flung out. There was a flash of flame cross Hawley's saddle, a sharp report, and Keith recoiled backward, dropping to his knees, one hand clutching at the sand. Again Hawley fired, but the horse, startled by the double report, leaped aside, and the ball went wild. Keith wheeled about, steadying himself with his outstretched hand, and let drive, pressing the trigger, until, through the haze over his eyes, he saw Hawley go stumbling down, shooting wildly as he fell. The man never moved, and Keith endeavored to get up, his gun still held ready, the smoke circling about them. He had been shot treacherously, as a cowardly scoundrel might shoot, and he could not clear his mind of the thought that this last act hid treachery also. But he could not raise himself, could not stand; red and black shadows danced before his eyes; he believed he saw the arm of the other move. Like a snake he crept forward, holding himself up with one hand, his head dizzily reeling, but his gun held steadily on that black, shapeless object lying on the sand. Then the revolver hand began to quiver, to shake, to make odd circles; he couldn't see; it was all black, all nothingness. Suddenly he went down face first into the sand.

They both lay motionless, the thirty-second drinking in their life blood. Hawley huddled upon his left side, his hat still shading the glazing eyes,

"Hope—Hope!"

Keith lying flat, his face in the crook of an arm whose hand still gripped a revolver. There was a grim smile on his lips, as if, as he pitched forward, he knew that, after he had been shot to death, he had gotten his man. The riderless horses gazed at the two figures, and drifted away, slowly, fearfully, still held in mute subjection to their dead masters by dangling reins. The sun blazed down from directly overhead, the heat waves rising and falling, the dead, desolate desert stretching to the sky. An hour, two passed. The horses were now a hundred yards away, nose to nose; all else was changeless. Then into the far northern sky there rose a black speck, growing larger and larger; beating the air with widely outspread wings, great beaks stretched forward. Out from their nests of foulness the desert scavengers were coming for their spoil.

CHAPTER XXXVII.

At the Water-Hole.

Up from the far, dim southwest they rode slowly, silently, wearied still by the exertions of the past night, and burned by the fierce rays of the desert sun. No wind of sufficient force had blown since Keith passed that way, and they could easily follow the hoof prints of his horse across the sand waste. Bristoe was ahead, hat brim drawn low, scanning the horizon line unceasingly. Somewhere out in the midst of that mystery was hidden tragedy, and he dreaded the knowledge of its truth. Behind him Fairbain and Hope rode together, their lips long since grown silent, the man ever glancing uneasily aside at her, the girl drooping slightly in the saddle, with pale face and heavy eyes. Five prisoners, lashed together, the binding rope fastened to the pommels of the two "Bar X" men's saddles, were bunched together, and behind all came Ned, his black face glistening in the heat.

Suddenly Bristoe drew rein, and rose to the full length in the stirrups, shading his eyes from the sun's glare, as he stared ahead. Two motionless black specks were visible—yet were they motionless? or was it the heat waves which seemed to yield them movement? He drove in his spurs, driving his startled horse to the summit of a low sand ridge, and again halted, gazing intently forward. He was not mistaken—they were horses. Knowing instantly what it meant—those riderless animals drifting demented in the heart of the desert—his throat dry with fear, the scout wheeled, and spurred back to his party, quickly resolving on a course of action. Hawley and Keith had met; both had fallen, either dead or wounded. A moment's delay now might cost a life; he would need Fairbain, but he must keep the girl back, if possible. But could he? She straightened up in the saddle as he came spurring toward them; her eyes wide open, one hand clutching at her throat.

"Doctor," he called as soon as he was near enough, his horse crouching, "that is somethin' showin' out you-der! I'd like ter take a look at, an' I reckon you better go long. The nigger kin com' up ahead yere with Miss Walte."

She struck her horse, and he plunged forward, bringing her face to face with Bristoe.

"What is it? Tell me, what is it?" "Nothin' but a loose horse, Miss."

"A horse! here on the desert? looking about, her eyes dark with horror. "But how could that be? Could it be that Captain Keith's?"

Bristoe cast an appealing glance at Fairbain, mopping his face vigorously, not knowing what to say, and the other attempted to turn the tide.

"No, I'm going," she cried, stifling a sob in her throat. "It would kill me to wait here."

She was off before either might raise hand or voice in protest, and they could only urge their horses in effort to overtake her, the three racing forward felloek deep in sand. Mounted upon a swifter animal Fairbain forged ahead; he could see the two horses now plainly, their heads uplifted, their reins dangling. Without perceiving more he knew already what was waiting there on the sand, and swore fiercely, spurring his horse mercilessly, forgetful of all else, even the girl, in his intense desire to reach and touch the bodies. He had begged to do this himself, to be privileged to seek this man Hawley, to kill him—

But now he was the physician, with no other thought except a hope to save. Before his horse had even stopped he flung himself from the saddle, ran forward and dropped on his knees beside Keith, bending his ear to the chest, grasping the wrist in his fingers. As the others approached, he glanced up, no conception how of aught save his own professional work. "Water, Bristoe," he exclaimed sharply. "Dash some brandy in it. Quick now. There, that's it; hold his head up—higher. Yes, you do it, Miss Hope; here, Ben, take this, and pry his teeth open—well, he got a swallow anyhow. Hold him just as he is—can you stand it? I've got to find where he was hit."

"Yes—yes," she answered, "don't—don't mind me." He tore open the woolen shirt, soaked with blood already hardening, felt within with skilled fingers, his eyes keen, his lips muttering unconsciously. "Quarter of an inch—quarter of an inch too high—scraped the lung—Lord, if I can only get it out—got to do it now—can't wait—here, Bristoe, that leather case on my saddle—run, damn you—we'll save him yet, girl—there, drop his head in your lap—yes, cry if you want to—only hold still—open the case, will you—down here, where I can reach it—now water—all our canteens—Hope, tear me off a strip of your under-skirt—what am I going to do?—extract the ball—got to do it—blood poison in this sun."

She ripped her skirt, handing it to him without a word; then dropped her white face in her hands, bending, with closed eyes, over the whiter face resting on her lap, her lips trembling with the one prayer, "Oh, God! Oh, God!" How long he was at it, or what he did, she scarcely knew—she heard the splash of water; caught the flash of the sun on the probe; felt the half-conscious shudder of the wounded man, whose head was in her lap, the deft, quick movements of Fairbain, and then—

"That's it—I've got it—missed the lung by a hair—damn me I'm proud of that job—you're a good girl."

She looked at him, scarce able to see, her eyes blinded with tears.

"Will—he live? Oh, tell me!" "Live! Why shouldn't he?—nothing but a hole to close up—nature'll do that, with a bit of nursing—here, now don't you keel over—give me the rest of that skirt."

He banded the wound, then glanced about suddenly.

"How's the other fellow?"

"Dead," returned Bristoe, "shot through the heart."

"Thought so—have seen Keith shoot before—I wonder how the cuss ever managed to get him."

As he arose to his feet, his red face glistening with perspiration, and began strapping his leather case, the others rode up, and Bristoe, explaining the situation, set the men to making preparations for pushing on to the water-hole. Blankets were swung between ponies, and the bodies of the dead and wounded deposited therein, firm bands on the bridges. Hope rode close beside Keith, struggling to keep back the tears, as she watched him lying motionless, unconscious, scarcely breathing. So, under the early glow of the desert stars, they came to the water-hole, and halted.

The wounded man opened his eyes, and looked about him unable to comprehend. At first all was dark, silent; then he saw the stars overhead, and a breath of air fanned the nearby fire, the ruddy glow of flame flashing across his face. He heard voices faintly, and thus, little by little, consciousness asserted itself and memory struggled back into his bewildered brain. The desert—the lonely leagues of sand—his fingers gripped as if they felt the stock of a gun—yet that was all over—he was not there—but he was somewhere—and alive, alive. It hurt him to move, to breathe even, and after one effort, to turn over, he lay perfectly still, staring up into the black arch of sky, endeavoring to think, to understand—where was he? How had he come there? Was Hawley alive also? A face bent over him, the features faintly visible in the flash of firelight. His dull eyes lit up in sudden recollection.

"Doc! is that you?"

"Sure, old man," the pudgy fingers feeling his pulse, the gray eyes twinkling. "Narrow squeak you had—going to pull through all right, though—no sign of fever."

"Where am I?"

"At the water-hole; sling you in a blanket, and get you into Larned tomorrow."

There was a moment's silence. Keith finding it hard to speak.

"Hawley?" he whispered at last.

"Oh, don't worry; you got him all right. Say, his voice sobering, "maybe it was just as well you took that job. If it had been me I would have been in bad."

The wounded man's eyes questioned. "It's a bad mix-up, Keith. Walte never told us all of it. I reckon he didn't want her to know, and she never shall, if I can help it. I've been looking over some papers in his pocket—he'd likely been after them this trip—and his name ain't Hawley. He's Bartlett Gale, Christie's father."

Keith could not seem to grasp the thought, his eyes half-closed.

"Her—her father?" he questioned weakly. "Do you suppose he knew?"

"No; not at first, anyhow; not at Sheridan. He was too interested in his scheme to even suspicion he had actually stumbled onto the real girl. I think he just found out."

A coyote howled somewhere in the darkness, a melancholy chorus joining in the with long-drawn cadence. A shadow swept into the radius of dancing firelight.

"Is he conscious, Doctor?"

Fairbain drew back silently, and she dropped on her knees at Keith's side, bending low to look into his face.

"Hope—Hope."

"Yes, dear, and you are going to live now—live for me."

He found her hand, and held it, clasped within his own, his eyes wide open.

"I have never told you," he said, softly, "how much I love you."

She bent lower until her cheek touched his.

"No, Jack, but you may now."

Odd, Va.:—"I am enjoying better health than I have for 20 years, and I believe I can safely say now that I am a well woman. I was reared on a farm and had all kinds of heavy work to do which caused the troubles that came on me later. For five years during the Change of Life I was not able to live a full life. I had hemorrhages which would last for weeks and I was not able to sit up in bed. I suffered a great deal with my back and was so nervous I could scarcely sleep at night, and I did not do any housework for three years.

TORN WITH STRIFE

Managers of Candidates of Both Parties Engage in Bitter Struggle.

HISTORY WILL BE REPEATED

After Conventions Are Over Men Who Are Now Fighting Each Other
Will Be Found Working for Party Choice.

By GEORGE CLINTON.

Washington.—There is strife in Washington between the forces attached to the different headquarters of the various candidates of both parties for the presidency of the United States. Mr. Taft's managers on their part are sending letters back and forth full of bitterness, innuendo and other things which are not at all nice to those who think that the reading to those who think that even time is come for peace on earth even among politicians. The same thing is in evidence among the Democratic managers. It must be said, however, that until a few days ago the Democratic champions of the different party candidates managed to keep the peace. Now, however, things have changed and charges are going back and forth, and the Republican camp and the Democratic camp look very much alike.

Politicians of both parties here say that history will repeat itself and that after the conventions are over the men who are calling one another names will be found shoulder to shoulder working on behalf of the nominees no matter whom they may be and will be entirely forgetful of everything that they said in the days preceding the convention. What is the history which has repeated itself? Virtually it is the history of every campaign, Democratic and Republican, which has been put on the pages of the country's record, although there have been admittedly one or two campaigns in both parties in which bitterness lasted after the convention days.

Four years ago now the Republican party was split just as it is today, only the "sides" were different. Men who are championing Mr. Taft's nomination now were opposed to him when he was a seeker for the nomination the last time, and men who were for him then are now against him, although, of course, this is not to be accepted as an absolutely comprehensive rule.

Are Now With Taft.

The champions of Mr. Cannon and Mr. Fairbanks and some others for the nomination four years ago and who did all that they could to secure the nomination of the men to whom their hearts were given are now doing what they can to put Mr. Taft into office. It was said four years ago that these men would carry their animosity into the campaign in case Taft were nominated, but the prophecy proved ill founded. It was Theodore E. Burton of Ohio who presented Mr. Taft's name to the beginning of his party. It was the beginning of the day of harmony, and notice Mr. Burton's honeyed words as addressed to the friends of the other candidates in the convention hall:

"We welcome the friendly rivalry of candidates from other states—from the great Empire State, the Keystone state, Indiana, Illinois and Wisconsin, forming with Ohio a broad expanse extending in unbroken sweep from old ocean to the uppermost bounds of the greatest of inland seas. Each of these present a leader among leaders whose achievements and renown are not confined to the narrow limits of a single commonwealth.

"Today with fervid earnestness we wage a contest for the prize. Tomorrow united for the fray and quickened by a common fiery zeal, the champions of all the candidates will go forth with mounting enthusiasm to vanquish the foe."

Before and After.

At the last Democratic convention at which a successful candidate for the presidency was named, the convention of 1892, there were New York Democrats in the convention hall to rise one after another through the long hours of one day's session to declare that if Grover Cleveland was the candidate of the party he could not and ought not to be elected. It was said that the division in the party was such that if Mr. Cleveland were again its standard bearer that overwhelming defeat would come from the Republicans, and there were insinuations even that the men who were protesting in the convention hall would lead a bolt against his election.

What happened? The New York delegation which voiced its antagonism to Grover Cleveland and breathed out all kinds of dismal prophecies of defeat in case he were nominated, went back home after the nomination had been carried against their protest, took off their coats and worked for Grover Cleveland and later voted for him at the November election. When the Republican newspapers twitted the New York Democrats with doing what they said they would not do, the retort was that things are different before and after conventions.

So it is that both Republicans and Democrats in Washington today say that no matter how angry they may seem to be now and no matter what they may say now in antagonism to other candidates that after the June days will come the peace of July and the following months, a peace which will continue until the snow storm of votes begins on the first Tuesday after the first Monday in November.

Members of the arrangements committee for the annual convention of the Daughters of the American Revolution already are in Washington. The Daughters will gather in their beautiful colonial memorial building before long to engage in their annual struggle for the election of officers, and when that is over to drop animosities and to work for the causes which brought the organization into existence.

One needs neither prose nor poetic license to speak of the delegates to these conventions as "fair daughters" for surely they are a body of comely women, and the shades of the forefathers that are supposed to float about the capital city of the land that they made, need not fear that a flush will steal into their cheeks or a frown furrow their shadowy brows at the sight of degeneracy in their descendant daughters.

When spring comes the guides in the capitol whose duty it is to pilot visitors about earn their daily wage with half the usual effort because the guided ones in large majority are the Daughters of the American Revolution. The guides who are obliged to talk themselves tired explaining things to the ordinary tourist simply walk ahead of the daughters and point to pictures or bust, and the tongues of the daughters do the rest.

Show Their Birth.

The Daughters gather from all the states in the Union. It was not hard the last time they were here to separate into localities of birth and bringing up those who attended an afternoon service at St. John's Episcopal church. It was not a service for the daughters. It was just a plain everyday evening prayer, and the daughters had dropped in to see the historic building from a new view. The spirits of their ancestors still dwell within them. There were those from Massachusetts with the Ironside blood in their veins, and those from Tennessee and Kentucky who in the person of the old Covenanters live again. Then there were the Virginians, the New Yorkers and the South Carolinians—daughters, so to speak, of the old brick sanctuary at Jamestown, towering Trinity and Gray St. Michael's.

At evensong in St. John's the daughters of New England, Tennessee and Kentucky looked upon marble altar, cross and candle stick and apparently felt stirring within them something of the sternness of the spirit of their ancestors who struck hard-fisted blows at things savoring of proflacy. True to family tradition and to the division line of things spiritual, the descendants of the Independent and Presbyterian sat bolt upright during the chanting of the creed. Their sisters whose ancestors had stood for church and king until they were forced to cut the bond and to help kick the king out of the partnership, made all amends for their companions' ritual and spiritual shortcomings, and knelt and stood, and even genuflected at times, in a good old high church way that would have delighted Archbishop Laud.

Rocky Boy Now Is Happy.

Word came to the Indian bureau the other day that Chief Rocky Boy and his Indians in the far northwest were satisfied with the home life, being contented and happy. Chief Rocky Boy once was very much in the congressional limelight. For years this Indian chief and his following had been wandering about the country, homeless, unable to hunt and doing little else but beg for a livelihood. Finally congress took action and the wandering mendicants were given a place to live. Former Senator Beveridge of Indiana is given credit for having done something for Rocky Boy, whose picturesque and somewhat suggestive name attracted more attention than did the supposed starving condition of the man who bore it.

Mr. Beveridge who is now in private life, would have been given, if Chief Rocky Boy had done his duty and had had the material to make them, a beaded hunting shirt, moccasins, leggings and eagle war bonnet of chieftainship in recognition of services rendered.

Rocky Boy and his warriors and women and children had never been able to get a home. They had been wandering through Montana living from hand to mouth and spurned alike by reds and whites. Bill after bill had been introduced for their relief, but no bill ever came within sight of the passing stage.

The name Rocky Boy finally struck a newspaper man's fancy. Possibly he had had the feeling himself. In an idle moment he drew up a mock measure and in it Senator Beveridge figured as Chief Rocky Boy, while a dozen or so other senators figured under other names as members of Rocky Boy's band of wanderers. The names fitted admirably or misfitted just as admirably. Senator Allison, who in no conceivable circumstances would commit himself in words, was called Chief Talks-Too-Much. Senator Aldrich, for reasons which may be apparent to people who know something of him, appeared in the relief measure as Chief Smooth Medicine.

Joke Brought Results.

A copy of the skit fell under Senator Beveridge's eye. It amused him. He hung it on the wall of his room. He showed it to people, and finally one day it occurred to him that Rocky Boy and his band had done him a service, and he resolved to look into Rocky Boy's case. He did look into it and found that the chief and his wandering Montana band were worthy of consideration. The Indiana senator made their cause his own. Objecting senators were asked to "be good," and a bill "for the relief of the wandering American-born Indians of Rocky Boy's band" passed the senate of the United States.

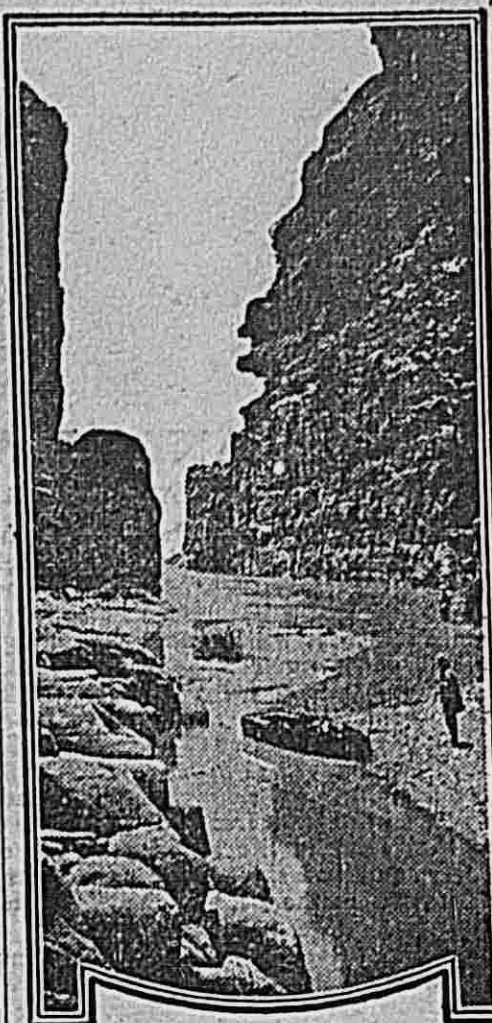

WONDERS OF THE DEAD SEA

Interesting Trip Around This Body of Water Told by Jacob E. Spafford.

Jerusalem.—An interesting trip around the Dead sea was made in a motor boat by Jacob E. Spafford, a member of the American colony in Jerusalem.

In circumnavigating the lake four or five very fertile plains or ghors were met with. "These plains," writes Mr. Spafford, "naturally bring to mind the connection of the Dead sea with Sodom and Gomorrah, the cities of the plain, that were overthrown. They have been variously placed on every side of the sea.

"These plains and the small oasis at Engedi are the only points where life of any kind and water are to be had. This evidently was a little paradise in the time of Solomon and is frequently mentioned in the Old Testament.

About ten miles from Engedi lies the peerless natural fortress of Macada (Sebbeh), first fortified by the Maccabees, then used as a place of refuge by Herod. At the foot of the tableland can be seen the Roman wall of circumvallation and the two Roman camps on either side of the small ravine.

"The fortress, which is 1,700 miles above the sea, has steep sides at about an angle of 75 degrees and cannot be approached, except from a connecting neck called the Serpentine. A more inhospitable place or one more disadvantageous to besiegers could not be imagined.

"Eight miles away is Jebel Usdum, a mountain of rock salt rising to a height of 500 feet. In this mountain is a large cave which was explored to the extent of about 200 yards, at which point a tapering cylindrical shaft of about 20 feet in diameter was discovered, piercing the solid rock salt 80 feet high, as though through polished marble, evidently the effects of the rain.

"Great snow white stalactites hung from the ceiling. The approach to this mountain presents most fantastic appearances of walls, buttresses, parapets, projecting towers, etc., caused by the stratification and lay of the salt boulders.

"A little south of Masada lies the rich Chor-el-Mizra. Here and elsewhere around the apple of Sodom described by Josephus."

CHEESE DENOTES THEIR RANK

Swiss Family Found Without Age Variety of Delicacy Is Scored.

Lucerne.—The English, the Germans, and the Norwegians are great consumers of cheese, but the people of Switzerland surpass them all. The cheese of Zermatt is so hard that one is obliged to scrape it or cut off chunks with a hatchet, and its use is considered most important on all ceremonial occasions. The rank of a Swiss family is known by the age of its cheese, and the more affection or respect a guest inspires the harder is the cheese which is cut in his honor. It is said that there are families in Switzerland whose cheeses date from the first French revolution, and these are served only at baptisms, weddings and after funerals.

The larder in every family is guarded with care and the cheese is named. Upon the birth of a new heir a cheese is made that takes the name given him or her, and that particular cheese is never under any circumstances cut until the boy or girl grows up and is married. On such occasions each of the guests takes a piece of cheese from the bridegroom and from the bride and drinks to their felicity, the cheese held aloft.—Harper's Weekly.

HIS UNKNOWN GOOD POINTS

Widow Found It Hard to Reconcile Eulogy With Her Knowledge of Dead Husband.

An old Irishman who had made a good deal of money, but who wasn't very particular about his habits or conduct, lived in Chicago. His custom was to go downtown about once a month on a spree, and then come back home and beat up his family and break the furniture. His aged wife who had stood him for many years, blind.

Finally he died, and his children gave him a fine funeral. They had plenty of money now that the old man was dead, and so they spread themselves. At the church there was elaborate ceremony. The blind widow was dissolved in woe. She cried and cried all through the services, paying scant heed to what was going on until the eulogy was pronounced. She listened. The priest referred to the dead man in glowing terms. After about ten minutes of this the aged widow nudged her son and whispered: "Danny, do they be havin' two funerals here today?"—Saturday Evening Post.

HANDS BURNED LIKE FIRE

"I can truthfully say Cuticura Remedies have cured me of four long years of eczema. About four years ago I noticed some little pimples coming on my little finger, and not giving it any attention, it soon became worse and spread all over my hands. If I would have them in water for a long time, they would burn like fire and large cracks would come. I could lay a pin in them. After using all the salves I could think of, I went to three different doctors, but all did me no good. The only relief I got was scratching.

"So after hearing so much about the wonderful Cuticura Remedies, I purchased one complete set, and after using them three days my hands were much better. Today my hands are entirely well, one set being all I used." (Signed) Miss Etta Barber, R. F. D. 2, Spring Lake, Mich., Sept. 26, 1910.

Although Cuticura Soap and Ointment are sold everywhere, a sample of each, with 32-page book, will be mailed free on application to "Cuticura," Dept. L, Boston.

Woman's Power Over Man

Woman's most glorious endowment is the power to awaken and hold the pure and honest love of a worthy man. When she loses it and still loves on, no one in the wide world can know the heart agony she endures. The woman who suffers from weakness and derangement of her special womanly organism soon loses the power to sway the heart of a man. Her general health suffers and she loses her good looks, her attractiveness, her amiability and her power and prestige as a woman. Dr. R. V. Pierce, of Buffalo, N. Y., with the assistance of his staff of able physicians, has prescribed for and cured many thousands of women. He has devised a successful remedy for women's ailments. It is known as Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It is a positive specific for the weaknesses and disorders peculiar to women. It purifies, regulates, strengthens and heals. Medicine dealers sell it. No honest dealer will advise you to accept a substitute in order to make a little larger profit.

Dady for State's Attorney

The Primary on April 9th on which date our county officers will be nominated has furnished one contest in the result of which the people are vitally interested. The contest is for the office of State's Attorney and four candidates are in the field. From present indications the result is not difficult to forecast.

Ralph J. Dady will have completed his first term of office in December of this year. Regardless of the qualifications of his opponents to fill this responsible position, Mr. Dady deserves a second term on the ground of efficiency and merit.

It has long been the custom when a county officer has served the interests of the people faithfully and satisfactorily to continue him in office, the second term being the nature of an endorsement of his past record. If this custom is followed, Mr. Dady's claim to a second term is not open to question.

All must concede that Mr. Dady has given prompt and personal attention to every complaint involving the violation of the criminal laws of the state; that he has secured an unusually large percentage of convictions in criminal cases tried before our courts and that he has been a most efficient and successful prosecutor.

His efforts have contributed materially in making the law respected and in making the people of this community feel secure in their persons and in their property rights.

Mr. Dady has turned over to the school fund of the county an average of more than one thousand dollars per year a record in that regard which we deem commendable.

He has faithfully kept the pledges made to the people of this county while a candidate four years ago in respect to an impartial and fearless enforcement of all the laws as he found them regardless of his personal belief in the wisdom of their enactment.

Mr. Dady is not a candidate of any interest or faction, but if elected will represent the whole people of the county.

We submit that by reason of his record during the present term and his ability as a prosecutor, now well known, he is entitled to the support of the voters of Lake County at the primary on April 9th, and we recommend him to the readers of the News and hope they will give him their support.

Elect a Lake County Man

The Senatorial question revolves itself into one of Lake county and its just rights.

The past two years McHenry county has monopolized this district's representation in the Illinois Legislature—electing the Senator and both Republican Representatives, a condition made possible under the new primary law, but a violation of the precedent of years in division of honors.

For over a quarter of a century the Eighth Senatorial District had distributed equitably its representation in the Legislature among its three counties. The district was formed with the intention of having a Republican member (Senator or Representative) in the General Assembly, allowing the minority or Democratic party, one member. The Senatorship has never been held, or sought to be taken by any one of the three counties for two successive terms.

McHenry has had her share. Lake is entitled to the Senatorship. MacGuffin is Lake county's only candidate, and for the life of us we can find not a single excuse for any Lake county voter supporting the McHenry county candidate.

It is simply a question of electing Paul MacGuffin and assuring Lake county's interests representation by a Lake county man. Legislation, vitally affecting this county is to be considered—we want a Lake county Senator.

Lake county has about 8000 more population than Boone and McHenry combined and McHenry has about all the representation.

Is it right? Attorney Paul MacGuffin, Lake county's candidate, is capable. His efficiency, character or honesty of purpose have never been, or never can be, questioned in the press of the district. His worth is admitted.

Lake county should have the Senatorship.

MacGuffin should be nominated.

George W. Paullin, Republican candidate for member of congress in this district, has the support of the Republican organization in Chicago, reports to the contrary notwithstanding. He is making a very quiet but effective campaign and wherever he goes he is meeting with the hearty support of the Republicans of the district.

Reardon's Candidacy

The candidacy of John E. Reardon for the nomination to the office of Clerk of the Circuit Court of this county has struck such a responsive chord among our people, that we feel called upon to say a few words in his behalf, not that we have any ill will toward the present incumbent, for we have not, but on the contrary we gladly say, well done good and faithful servant, but thou hast had thy just reward, and with that, we think we have said quite enough.

Mr. Reardon was slightly known to us at the beginning of his candidacy, but his vigorous campaigning has brought him much to our notice. On every hand his fitness is conceded. Sixteen years of uninterrupted employment by the leading attorneys of the Lake county bar makes him fit. The manner in which he campaigns, stamps him as clean, and his integrity and honor above question.

Indeed, it would not be strange if in the heat of a first campaign, the young man had made some unkind remarks regarding his opponent, but on the contrary, he has had but one argument to make, one reason to urge, why he should be nominated and elected, and that was twenty years of continuous feeding at the public crib was long enough for any man, and having had that, he should step aside and give place to another. Not had political dope at that. Then too, how can Mr. Brockway, or his friends, urge his candidacy in the face of the many promises made by him to leading citizens in the different towns in this county, that he would not be a candidate for a fourth term. Surely, the office-holding habit must be incurable.

No better man could be nominated for minority representative for the General Assembly from this district than Supervisor Thomas E. Graham. He is making a clean but quiet campaign, and he is a Lake county man, and every Democrat should vote for him because he will represent Lake county.

JOHN E. REARDON
Candidate for Circuit Clerk

Who is Looked Upon as a Winner

To the Republican Voters of Lake County

In submitting my name as candidate for the important office of State's Attorney, I pledge to the voters my most earnest and unremitting efforts to enforce the law to the best of my ability, with due regard for the rights and interests of all.

My life since childhood has been spent in Lake County and my interest in a just and reasonable execution of the law is precisely the same as that of every law abiding citizen. The law lays down the powers and duties of the office to which I aspire and defines same. If elected, I will assume those powers and duties with a full sense of the responsibility thereby placed on me.

There is no other promise which such an officer can, in my opinion, properly make, and perform if made.

Respectfully
ELHANAN W. COLBY.

ANDREW RUSSEL

REPUBLICAN CANDIDATE FOR STATE TREASURER

Andrew Russel, of Jacksonville, is seeking the republican nomination for the Treasuryship of Illinois. He held that office from 1909 to 1911 and his record then was such as to gain commendation from the voters of this state. A banker and a business man of long experience, he conducted the office of state treasurer with honesty and integrity; characteristics which have marked his career in numerous other positions of honor and trust.

He comes of rugged Scotch stock, his father, William Russel coming direct from Glasgow, Scotland, to Morgan County, Illinois, in 1834, where in 1853 he was married to Miss Emily Gallaher, a native of Sangamon county, Ill. Andrew Russel was born in Jacksonville on June 17th, 1856—the day on which the first National Republican Convention was held in Philadelphia and which was also the anniversary of the battle of Bunker Hill. Thus, it is quite natural that early in life he adopted the established principles of the republican party, and has since been one of its staunch supporters. He received his education in the public school, in the Jacksonville Business College and in Illinois College.

Mr. Russel in 1874 became connected with the Jacksonville National Bank, and after sixteen years of active service he severed his connection with that institution to become a member of the banking firm of Dunlap, Russel & Company. Two years ago, Mr. Dunlap and Mr. Russel acquired the controlling interest in the Ayers National Bank of Jacksonville, and during the present year it will move into its new home, a commodious seven story building, now in course of construction. When this is done, the banking house of Dunlap, Russel & Company will be merged into it; thus making one of the largest and strongest banking institutions in Central Illinois.

Mr. Russel is a past president of the Illinois Bankers' Association, has served five terms as treasurer of the city of Jacksonville, for six years was chairman of the State Board of Pardons, for a number of years president of the Jacksonville Library Board, and has held various other positions of honor and trust in his native city. Mr. Russel takes a special interest in all educational matters, and in the physical training of young boys and their athletic sports, and probably among the many important offices which he has held there is none in which he takes more pride and pleasure than that of being chairman of the Board of Trustees of Illinois College.

There are many things which can be said in favor of Mr. Russel's nomination, not only from a party standpoint, but also from the desire of the people to have an honest, efficient and accommodating official.

During his term as state treasurer from 1909 to 1911 he put into force the very best possible civil service—retaining the employees and making all promotions on the ground of merit alone. He turned into the state treasury a large amount of money, this being the interest earned on state funds.

Mr. Russel has an untarnished good name. He is a business man of exceptional ability; a banker of wide experience; and a republican of unswerving faith in his party.

Shurtleff's Announcement.

TO THE REPUBLICAN VOTERS OF THE EIGHTH SENATORIAL DISTRICT:

I hereby announce myself as a Candidate for Representative in the Lower House of the General Assembly, subject to the Republican Primaries to be held April 9, 1912

For twelve years I have supported and helped pass through the House an appropriation for $2,500 for the benefit of the Dairymen's Association in compiling, publishing and distributing its reports and other necessary expenses. This is a regular appropriation always passed.

A few years ago I instituted an appropriation of $1000 for the Illinois State Milk Producers' Institute, which has been appropriated at every session since and had my support in the House. This is now a regular appropriation.

I am opposed to the State Highway Commission at Springfield, appointed by the Governor or otherwise, having the right to lay out and route the first-class roads in any county, upon which work shall be done first, which, in effect, merely provides and is proposed for an Automobile Highway and not for the common public which uses the roads.

I am opposed to the State Highway Commission, or any board at Springfield, having the Control, Direction or Management or doing anything further than systematic advice and along educational lines. It is destructive of Local Self-Government.

I favor the Automobile License Money being distributed over the State equally to Townships, according to their physical measurements outside of cities, and not according to their assessed valuation. An automobile injures the roads in a poor Township the same as in a good one.

I am opposed to Tax Assessments being tried by Appeal by a Board at Springfield, appointed by the Governor or otherwise.

I am opposed to a law authorizing Re-assessment of Property in any Taxing District by any Clerk sent from Springfield. It is destructive to Local Self-Government.

I am opposed to the Control and Management of the Public Schools being taken out of the hands of the County Superintendent and the Local authorities and placed in the hands of a "Council of Education" at Springfield

I favor the Best Legislation for the Actual Dairymen of the Eighth Senatorial District, and I protest against the Milk Producers' Association being used for Political Purposes.

Very Respectfully,
EDWARD D. SHURTLEFF.

SUPPLEMENT TO THE ANTIOCH NEWS

HE DEPENDED ON HIS WIFE

How the Nearsighted Old Man Almost Slept Himself to Death, Never Eating.

It seems that an old man with some property had married an elderly lady. The lady was a sprightly dame, executive, lively and keen. The bridegroom could not see more than an inch beyond his nose, and he was pretty hard of hearing, too. So he depended a good deal on his wife, you understand. He'd wake up in the morning and wonder if it wasn't time to get up for breakfast. So he'd slide out of bed and look into his wife's room. If she was up, he'd begin dressing; if she was still in the hay, he'd go back and have another nap. Well, the lady got on to this habit of his. She fixed up a dummy out of bedclothes one morning just before she went downstairs. The old man came into the room an hour later, squinted at the bed and said, "Anna's still asleep," and went right back to the feathers. After he had slept awhile he took another observation. Same business.

It was ten days before he found out how his wife had been fooling him. He blame near slept himself to death meanwhile. He never had a meal and he got weaker and weaker, but he never got up. He didn't know it was morning yet. And the old lady had the time of her life; she had saved $14.36 in groceries alone.

Higgins, the driver of the pile wag on, told us this. And he swears it's true, but we swear not at all.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Good Thing to Remember.

Five fingers of scorn do not equal one helping hand.

KNEW HIM AND LOVED HIM

Dr. Courtenay, Mutilated Veteran of the Confederate Army, as He Was in Tippah.

Dr. Courtenay entered the Confederate army as a surgeon, and after his surrender found himself without home, family, or fortune. His right coat-sleeve dangled empty; the hand that had saved so many lives could not save itself. It had been amputated after Gettysburg, and the story goes that Lee himself—the name is always pronounced slowly and reverently in Tippah—had said, "I wish I could give my hand to save yours, doctor." Another loss, equally grave, but less conspicuous, was that of his left lung. It was this trouble that had brought him to Tippah's mild climate, for nearly 20 years he had lived there alone in his three-room cottage, riding out every day to his little farm, five miles from town, and reading and smoking far into the night. His library was the wonder of Tippah. Books in five languages lined the walls of his house—all in the cheapest bindings, for the doctor was poor; but, as he used to say, it was the meat in the nut he cared for, not the shell outside. He never practiced medicine, except occasionally among persons too poor to pay for medical advice, or, more frequently, in serious cases when called in consultation. It was known that he had never taken a fee in Tippah. Every one believed implicitly in his skill. It was a common thing to hear it said, after a death, "Nothing could have saved him; Dr. Courtenay said so."—Lillian Kirk Hammond in the Atlantic.

SOME FACTS ABOUT SLEEP

Caused by a Withdrawal of Blood From the Brain, Says Modern Physiology.

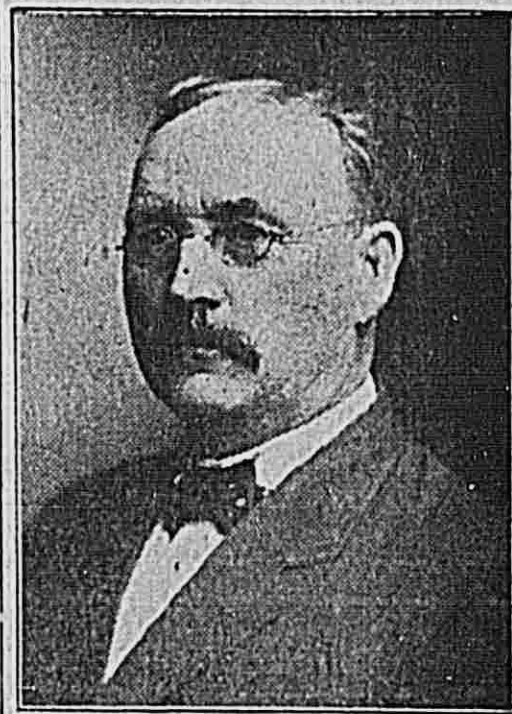

All the organs of life rest in some way or other. The heart has an interval of rest between each combined act of contraction and expansion and the beginning of a fresh act. Between each expiration of the lungs and the succeeding inspiration there is a period of repose. Physiologists have calculated that the heart reposes during about one-fourth of the time.

Certain of the other organs suspend their activity in part during sleep. Old physiologists supposed that sleep was caused by the pressure of the blood on the brain. But modern physiology, with a tendency to regard the brain as the origin of all force and of all functions of the body, inclines to the view that sleep is caused by a withdrawal of blood from the brain.

As a rule, the larger the brain the more sleep it requires. Webster went to bed at nine o'clock and rose at five. General Grant used to say, during his campaigns, "I can do nothing without nine hours' sleep."

A curious trait has marked men of large brain—that of sleeping at will. Bonaparte used to throw himself on the ground and go to sleep within a space of two minutes. Pitt was a sound sleeper, and slept right after night in the house of commons while his colleagues watched the debate and roused him when it was necessary that he should speak.

The Ringwood co-operative creamery, for many years one of the largest and best paying creameries in McHenry county, is about the last of the creameries in that section to be forced out of business, due to the steady drain on its milk supply by the various bottling plants and the factory has been sold to the Bowman Dairy company.

An average price of $1.25 per hundred for summer milk is the schedule announced by the Borden company last Friday, which was contract day at the different plants in Richmond district. The average is the same as paid last season, though a slight change is noticeable in the monthly prices. May milk will bring only $1.05 this summer, a decrease of 5 cents over the May price last year, but September milk will sell for $1.50, or 5 cents above the price a year ago.

WORRIED OVER THE SILENCE

Eternal Racket Overhead, Mr. Flat-dweller Was Used To, but to Hear No Sound!

"We don't know what to make of it," said Mr. Flatdeweller. "Of course, under the normal conditions of life in a flat we expect the folks overhead to play the piano day and night and to have about three parties a week at which they play until 1 or 2 o'clock in the morning."

"And we expect them to get up at all hours of the night and grope around and fall over the furniture and upset chairs, and then we expect to hear varied vivid exclamations, made with the muffer off. And to be sure, we expect the children to get up and begin racing up and down the hall and dragging rumbling play wagons and things around on the floor over us at 5:30 to 6 a. m. of course, and we don't mind it a bit, for they are nice people, and all these things contribute only to the normal state of things."

"That's the point, the normal. We expect it and we get used to it and it never disturbs us. Men who work in boiler factories never hear the noise. But we've got some people in over us now that don't make any noise! And we don't know what to make of that."

"It's positively mysterious. They don't upset anything or break anything, they don't even play the piano, they're absolutely quiet and, honest, we wonder what they're doing. It makes a sort of hiatus or vacuum or something in our accustomed manner of existence and in a way it's sort of dazing to us; we don't know what to think about it."

"When they do move about they move very gently, quickly, and it puts us in a very different, in a greatly changed situation."

"But I suppose we'll get used to it; we can get used to anything."

Helped by Mark Twain.

The removal of the old organ from the Second Presbyterian church at Carlisle, Pa., recalls the fact that it was purchased with funds raised by a lecture course in which Mark Twain was one of the principal entertainers. On the night of his lecture Twain held his audience in suspense by being half an hour late. Gen. Lemuel Todd, who had been assigned to introduce the humorist, was growing restless and everybody was fidgety.

When Twain at last stepped on the platform he did not give General Todd an opportunity of presenting him. Merely nodding to Todd, Twain said:

"Ladies and gentlemen, I understand that your esteemed townsman, Gen. Todd, has been asked to introduce me to you. However, as I know myself better than anyone else, I believe I am better qualified to present myself."

Then he kept his audience in an uproar for more than two hours.

Ball in a Coal Mine.

The death of Mr. Brandling, a Newcastle, England, coal operator, recalls a famous ball he gave some years ago. The ballroom was in the coal mine, 1,100 feet below ground, in the shape of the letter L, the width being 15 feet, the height 48 feet, and the length 300 feet. The floor was dried and flagged, seats provided, and the whole place illuminated with wax candles. The company comprised all the miners and their families, the proprietors and agents, and a number of guests from London. It required considerable courage for some of the strangers to go down the shaft, but they all ventured. Dancing was from noon till 3 p. m., and all returned to the upper air clean and safe, and each carrying as a memento a piece of coal hewn from the end of the drift.

Good Record Pleaded for Him.

An elderly former soldier, who had served in Burma, India, and South Africa, and had several medals, pleaded guilty at the Middlesex (England) sessions, recently, to a charge of housebreaking and asked to be given another chance. "Yes," replied the deputy chairman, "we will give you a chance, if only for the ribbons on your breast. I hope it will be an encouragement to others to know that if they get into trouble one of the most sympathetic notes that can be struck is to prove that they have served their country."

Burglars Worked Hard.

A remarkable burglary took place at a pawnshop in a small Scotch town recently. Breaking through a window the burglars entered the ante-room of the shop. The iron door resisted all their efforts so they took up the floor and foundation of the wall, and after removing one ton of masonry they were able to get into the cellar. Removing a panel from the cellar door, they gained admittance to the shop, which they ransacked, securing jewelry of the value of $500.

The Relentless Critic.

"I suppose," said the official, "that you think our building regulations are the least efficient that ever existed?" "No," replied the citizen who kicks, "I won't say that. Those permitting the construction of the tower of Babel must have been worse."

RAIL TARIFFS ARE HIT

COMMERCE COMMISSION RULES STATE RATES MUST APPLY ACROSS BORDER.

MINORITY OPPOSES PLAN

Far Reaching Principle Is Established In Case of Louisiana Body Against Roads Operating In That State and Texas.

Washington.—In an opinion made public here the interstate commerce commission established the far-reaching principle that a railroad must so adjust its rates that justice will be done between communities regardless of state lines.

If a railroad makes a low rate upon traffic wholly within a state, even when forced to do so by a state commission, it must accord the same rate to interstate traffic moving under substantially similar conditions. The principle was laid down by a vote of 4 to 3.

The minority held that the powers of congress were usurped by the majority opinion and that the remedy for such a situation should be applied through additional legislation in the case of the railroad commission of Louisiana against the St. Louis Southwestern railway and other carriers operating between Louisiana and Texas.

The opinion of the majority of the interstate commission, prepared and handed down by Commissioner Lane, is a definite assertion of the supremacy of national regulatory authority over the powers exercised by any state.

It is the first time this assertion has been made distinctly by the commission. In making it Chairman Protty and Commissioners Clark and Meyer concurred with Commissioner Lane, and Commissioners Clements, Harlan and McChord dissented.

The proceeding brought by the Louisiana commission placed in issue the right of interstate carriers to discriminate in favor of state traffic and against interstate traffic.

"The gravamen of the complaint," the opinion says, "is that the defendant carriers make rates out of Texas and other Texas points into eastern Texas which are much lower than those which they extend into Texas from Shreveport, La. A rate of 60 cents carries first-class traffic to the eastward from Dallas a distance of 160 miles, while the same rate of 60 cents will carry the same class of traffic only fifty-five miles into Texas from Shreveport."

The low rate within the state of Texas was forced upon the railroads by the Texas railroad commission in furtherance of a policy to protect and promote the jobbing interests of Texas.

The Louisiana commission and that state's commercial interests declared that Louisiana was being discriminated against because of the exaction of the higher rates from Shreveport westward and demanded an adjustment of the rates.

The contention of Louisiana was sustained by the commission absolutely. The majority held: That the present class rates from Shreveport to Texas points were unreasonable and prescribed lower rates which must be put into effect by May 1.

That the present relation of rates east-bound and west-bound from Shreveport gives an undue preference to Dallas and Houston and other Texas cities and the carriers are ordered to establish the same rates on west-bound as on eastbound traffic.

That if a state, by the exercise of its lawful power, establishes rates which the interstate carrier makes effective upon state traffic, that carrier does so with the full knowledge that the federal government requires it to apply such rates under like conditions upon interstate traffic.

That to say that an interstate carrier may discriminate against interstate commerce because of the order of a state commission would be to admit that a state may limit and prescribe the flow of commerce between the states.

The conclusion of the majority opinion is a vigorous assertion of the paramount authority of the national government over all interstate traffic.

BRIBE HEARING BEGUN

POLICEMAN TESTIFIES AGAINST NEW MEXICO LEGISLATORS.

Tells About Bathroom Incident—Accused Men Declare They Are Conspiracy Victims.

Santa Fe, N. M.—Mounted Policeman A. A. Sena, who testified before the house committee of fifteen at the investigation of bribery charges against Representatives Lucero, Montoya and Cordova, underwent a severe cross-examination, but his story was not shaken.

Sena told of having heard a conversation between Elfigo Baca, the prosecuting witness, and the four defendants in a room at the Palace hotel, in which the defendants promised, he said, to vote for any candidate for the senate that Baca might designate.

He declared when the money was passed that Baca clapped his hands as a signal, and the witnesses, Veneciano, Jaramillo and Jose D. Sena, who had been waiting in an adjoining bath room, stepped in. The witness said he took the money, relating how part of it had been thrust under a bed quilt.

He told of recovering a $20 gold piece half an hour after the arrests, from the defendant Lucero, who had it in his vest pocket.

Questions asked by the defense indicated that counsel for the accused will seek to show a conspiracy existed to get the four legislators out of the way because they would not vote in a certain way in the senatorial contest.

The men were arraigned before District Judge David J. Leahy. They waived preliminary examination and bail was fixed at $2,000 each.

MEN REFUSED WAGE INCREASE

Coal Operators Will Not Grant Demands of Miners—200,000 in Four States Ready to Strike.

Cleveland, O.—All the demands of the 200,000 miners in the bituminous coal fields of western Pennsylvania, Ohio, Indiana and Illinois for a ten per cent. increase in pay and shorter working hours were voted down by the operators here.

As a final effort to prevent a prolonged shut-down of the mines after April 1, and possibly a strike, the whole dispute was then referred to a subcommittee. The subcommittee, composed of eight miners' delegates and eight operators' delegates, will convene to consider the possibility of a compromise to be recommended to the general conference.

Both operators and miners declared, after the union demands had been refused, that the coal situation throughout the country was grave. Intimations were made by John P. White, president of the United Mine Workers of America, that the negotiations here might continue a few days longer, until the union's policy committee will convene.

Besides the 200,000 miners in the four states directly concerned, 160,000 bituminous coal miners in other states are dependent upon the present deliberations for a basis of making their wage scale, and in addition the policy committee will consider the wage demands of about 170,000 anthracite miners. It was pointed out by President White that the wages of more than 500,000 union miners after April 1 were in dispute, and that the coal output of the country, other than that mined by nonunion men, was involved.

NEGRO CONVICT IS LYNCHED

Black Kills Guard, Fires on Others—Mob Takes Slayer From Sheriff and Hang Him.

Cochran, Ga.—A negro convict, Homer Howell, was lynched after he had killed Guard Joseph Cooey, aged forty, and attempted to shoot down two other guards in the convict camp a mile from here.

Howell and sixty other men in the camp, it is said, had plotted to escape. News of the killing spread quickly. Howell, guarded by deputy sheriffs, was being taken to Hawkinsville, ten miles from this place, when a mob of fifty armed men took the prisoner and quickly strung him up to a telephone pole.

TO SAVE RICHESON'S LIFE

The date set for the execution is May 19. Mr. Morse said no petition for commutation would be sent to the governor for two weeks at least. Richeson's friends hope to obtain a life sentence for him.

GIrl Wins $15,000 Suit.

34 HEROES HONORED

FINAL TRIBUTE PAID TO UNIDENTIFIED BODIES OF MAINE MARTYRS.

THOUSANDS ATTEND FUNERAL

Services Begin in White House Grounds and End at Arlington Cemetery—President Taft and Cabinet Present at Ceremonies.

Washington.—The nation has paid final tribute to its martyred dead. The chief officials of the United States honored the memory of the men who perished in Havana harbor fourteen years ago when an explosion destroyed the battleship Maine. Thirty-four unidentified bodies recovered from the wreckage were interred in Arlington cemetery with ceremonies that were most impressive. President Taft was present, as were also members of the cabinet, other high government officials, many officers and men of the navy and army and thousands of private citizens.

The funeral began with services in the park behind the White House and a procession thence, the escort being second in size only to that at the funeral of President McKinley. At the cemetery the services were conducted by Rev. G. Livingston Bayard, chaplain of the Washington navy yard, and Rev. Father John P. Chadwick, who was chaplain of the Maine at the time of its destruction.

The thirty-four buried were the last of the martyrs recovered from the Maine wreck, the other 227 having been taken out shortly after the explosion, when they were identified, shipped to their several former homes in different parts of the country, and buried in separate private funerals by their families. The last thirty-four bodies, however, which had lain under Havana harbor for fourteen years, could not be identified, so the one great funeral was arranged as a tribute of the nation to her heroes.

ALLENS OFFER TO SURRENDER

Outlaws' Last Hope Is to Avoid Death Chair for Crime—Sidna Edwards Is Captured.

They have sent an emissary to the officials at Roanoke and have offered to surrender.

HEAR MINERS CRY

75 VICTIMS APPEAL THROUGH PIPE FOR HELP.

Fifty-Five Bodies Have Been Recovered—Twenty-Five Men Brought Out Alive.

McCurain, Okla.—Pitiful cries for help, conveyed to the surface through a small air pipe, were distinctly heard from the seventy-five miners still imprisoned in the shaft of the San Bois mine.

For several hours the imprisoned men, 200 feet below the shaft opening, could be heard as they attempted to tell their exact plight and location to the rescuers on the ground above. Every means was taken to understand the words, but nothing more than the cries and a murmured jumble of conversation was audible.

Tappings, the sound of which was conveyed along another air pipe, resulted in the rescue of fourteen more survivors of the terrible explosion. This makes just twenty-five miners brought to the surface since the rescuers started to work, and still leaves in the vicinity of seventy-five men battling for their lives against the poisonous gases and black damp in the crowded shafts. No way is known to tell the number who have already succumbed to the lack of oxygen.

The man claims to have been an old friend of Folke E. Brandt.

REAL FACTS ABOUT HIGHWAY BILL GIVEN FOR BENEFIT OF VOTERS

Amendments in Senate Did Not Change Real Purpose of Bill--Read Below and See How This Bad Measure Was Changed in Words but Not in Substance--Text of Bill Given in Shurtleff Circular Substantially Correct--The "Deadly Parallel" Herewith Given Gives You the Real Facts.

SENATE BILL 175

The Road and Bridge Law

IN THE ANNOUNCEMENT I GAVE OUT, THE CIRCULAR PRINTED WAS SENATE BILL 175, THE ORIGINAL BILL, AND I TOOK THE SAME FROM AN ABSTRACT MADE BY THE STATE OF ILLINOIS HIGHWAY COMMISSIONERS ASSOCIATION. IT IS TRUE THE BILL WAS AMENDED IN THE SENATE--AMENDED MORE IN WORDS THAN IN SUBSTANCE. I HAVE NOT MISREPRESENTED THE PURPORT AND SUBSTANCE OF THIS BILL. THE AMENDMENTS, IN SOME PARTICULARS, MAKE IT WORSE THAN MY ABSTRACT.

SENATE BILL 175 IN MY CIRCULAR.

SENATE BILL 175 AS AMENDED.

Sec. 1. That there be and is hereby created a Superintendent of Roads in each county of the State, to be appointed as hereinafter provided.

Sec. 2. Whenever the Board of Supervisors shall suggest to the Governor the name or names of persons for the office of County Superintendent of Roads, it shall be the duty of the Governor to appoint a County Superintendent of Roads, provided the Governor shall have previously received from the State Highway Commission its approval in writing of the candidate or candidates under consideration for appointment, and no appointment of any County Superintendent of Roads shall be made without such approval.

Sec. 13. It shall be the duty of the County Superintendent of Roads to advise with the township highway commissioners in regard to all expenditures for roads and bridges, AND NO WORK SHALL BE UNDERTAKEN BY THE TOWNSHIP OFFICIALS OR ROAD DISTRICT OFFICIALS, AS THE CASE MAY BE, WITHOUT THE APPROVAL OF THE COUNTY SUPERINTENDENT OF ROADS. THE COUNTY SUPERINTENDENT OF ROADS SHALL BE IN CHARGE OF THE CONSTRUCTION, ETC.

Sec. 9. County Superintendent of Roads shall classify the public highways in his county into three classes:

1st: Roads connecting the principal points in the county, following the most traveled route.

2nd: Roads which shall include the principal roads leading to the main roads.

3rd: Roads which shall include all by-roads and roads not otherwise included in the first and second class.

Sec. 1. That there be and is hereby created the office of Superintendent of Roads in each county of the State, to be appointed as hereinafter provided.

Sec. 2. The County Superintendent of Roads shall be a competent surveyor and civil engineer. His qualification for the office to be determined by an examination before the State Highway Commission.

(The State Highway Commission is appointed by the Governor.)

Sec. 3. Whenever the County Board of Supervisors shall decide to appoint a County Superintendent of Roads for such county, as provided for in this act, the Board shall notify the State Highway Commission. Upon receipt of such notice the State Highway Commission shall give notice by publication that upon a certain date and at a certain place an examination will be held for all applicants to said position. . . . The State Highway Commission shall submit the names of those persons, if any there be, who are residents of such county, who have passed a successful examination and are qualified to fill such position. Should there be no person from that county, etc., then from an eligible list of those who have passed the required examination before said State Highway Commission, the State Highway Commission shall submit to said County Board a list of three or more persons, in the order of their grades as shown by their examination. From this list the County Board of Supervisors shall by a majority vote upon roll call, appoint a County Superintendent of Roads for that county. The name of the appointee shall be sent to the State Highway Commission.

Sec. 14. It shall be the duty of the County Superintendent of Roads to advise with the township highway commissioners in regard to work and expenditures for roads and bridges and methods of working the roads each year at such times and places as agreed upon. THE COUNTY SUPERINTENDENT OF ROADS, UNDER THE PROPER COUNTY AND TOWNSHIP AUTHORITIES (that is, roads under the proper county any township authorities) SHALL HAVE SUPERVISION OVER THE CONSTRUCTION OF ALL BRIDGES AND PERMANENT IMPROVEMENT WORK REQUIRING THE SERVICES OF A SURVEYOR OR CIVIL ENGINEER ON PUBLIC HIGHWAYS, AND IT SHALL BE HIS DUTY TO MAKE SPECIFICATIONS FOR ALL SUCH ROAD AND BRIDGE WORK. UPON COMPLETION OF SUCH PERMANENT IMPROVEMENT WORK, OR BRIDGE, THE COUNTY SUPERINTENDENT OF ROADS SHALL INSPECT THE SAME AND SHALL CERTIFY TO THE PROPER COUNTY AND TOWNSHIP AUTHORITIES AS TO WHETHER OR NOT SUCH WORK HAS BEEN DONE OR BRIDGE CONSTRUCTED ACCORDING TO CONTRACT.

Sec. 10. It shall be the duty of the County Superintendent of Roads to classify the public highways in his county into three classes, to be known as:

"Class A" roads, which shall include the roads connecting the principal points in the county, following the most traveled route.

"Class B" roads, which shall include the principal roads leading to the main roads.

"Class C" roads, which shall include all by-roads and roads not otherwise included in "Class A" and "Class B."

"Class A" roads to be not over twenty-five per cent. of the total road mileage.

BEFORE THE PLATS SHOWING THE MAIN LINE ROUTES, OR CLASS A ROADS, OF THE COUNTY SHALL BE ACCEPTED AS SUCH, THEY SHALL RECEIVE THE APPROVAL OF THE STATE HIGHWAY COMMISSION, WHO IS HEREBY DIRECTED TO SO CHANGE, IF NECESSARY, THE ROUTES OF THE CLASS A ROADS SO THAT THEY WILL BE CONTINUOUS WITH THE CLASS A ROADS IN ADJOINING COUNTIES, IN SUCH A MANNER AS WILL BEST SERVE THE PUBLIC'S INTEREST.

THE QUESTION AS TO WHETHER THE BILL IS OPTIONAL OR NOT WOULD SEEM TO BE BASED UPON THE LEGAL CONSTRUCTION OF THE WORD "WHENEVER."

THE HIGHWAY COMMISSIONERS ASSOCIATION IN THE STATE REGARDED THE BILL AS A MANDATORY BILL AND NOT AN OPTIONAL BILL.

BY THE AMENDMENT THE GOVERNOR DOES NOT APPOINT THE COUNTY SUPERINTENDENT OF ROADS BUT THE STATE HIGHWAY COMMISSION FIRST NAMES THOSE WHO ARE QUALIFIED, AND THE GOVERNOR APPOINTS THE STATE HIGHWAY COMMISSION.

THE STATE HIGHWAY COMMISSION AT SPRINGFIELD DETERMINES WHAT SHALL BE THE MAIN TRAVELED ROAD BETWEEN WAUKEGAN AND M'HENRY, BETWEEN WOODSTOCK AND BELVIDERE, BETWEEN THE PRINCIPAL CITIES IN DIFFERENT COUNTIES, REGARDLESS OF THE WISHES OF ANY HIGHWAY COMMISSIONERS OR THE COUNTY SUPERINTENDENT OF ROADS.

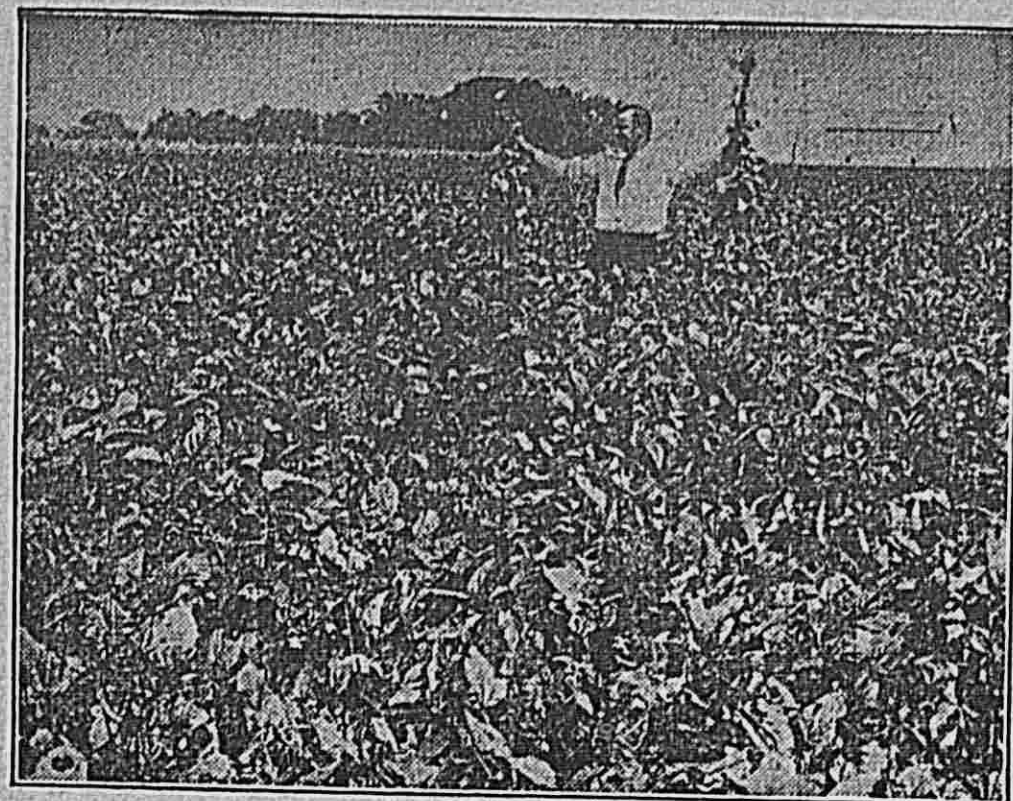

SECTION 1 ABSOLUTELY CREATES THE OFFICE OF SUPERINTENDENT OF ROADS IN EVERY COUNTY IN THE STATE, WHO EVER HEARD IN THESE TIMES OF AN OFFICE CREATED AND NO ONE TO FILL IT? THE AMENDED BILL ONLY CHANGES WORDS AND NOT THE SUBSTANCE OF THIS LAW.

AFTER BEING PASSED IN THE SENATE WITH THE AID OF A. J. OLSON, THE BILL WAS DEFEATED IN THE HOUSE, AS IT WAS REGARDED AS, AND WAS A VERY DANGEROUS BILL, TO CREATE THESE OFFICES AND GIVE THESE POWERS, AND THE SPONSORS OF THE BILL REFUSED TO ACCEPT THE PROPER MODIFICATIONS.

THE BILL IS BAD.

SOY BEANS A MOST DESIRABLE CROP FOR ILLINOIS CORN BELT

Soy Beans in Northern Illinois Yield 23.7 Bushels Seed Per Acre, or Three Tons of Hay on Land Where Clover Failed.

By WILLIAM G. ECKHARDT,
University of Illinois.

Soy beans are a leguminous crop and, like clover, have the power to use the nitrogen of the air in their growth. If inoculated with the proper bacteria. They should be grown more generally throughout the corn belt. They fit into almost any rotation to a very good advantage.

The frequent failure of clover makes it very desirable to have a crop that will provide a hay as good as clover—and that will be of the same benefit to the soil. Soy beans will do this and maintain the rotation, as they can be grown following small grain on the land where it was intended to have clover. Where land is so poor that it is next to impossible to secure a stand of clover, soy beans serve as a nitrogen-gathering crop, making it possible to build up the land so that clover again can be grown. They can be grown after corn, taking the place of oats in most rotations. Where feed like clover hay or oil meal is needed, soy beans might well take the place of oats. This will often make it possible to change a rather questionable crop to a profitable one, and at the same time one that will add nitrogen to the soil.

It must be kept in mind that there is a very great difference in different varieties of soy beans. Some varieties are very difficult to harvest, giving much trouble by the pods bursting open and the seed being lost. These should not be seeded. From the present knowledge, two varieties are good, both as yielders and having pods that will not burst open through the most adverse weather conditions for Illinois, the Medium Yellow, and the Black Beauty or U. S. Department No. 9414, also called Ebony.

The Medium Yellow mature perhaps ten days earlier than the Black Beauty, and are preferable in the northern part of the corn belt, also where it is desirable to follow winter wheat after soy beans. They usually ripen for seed about September, giving time to remove them and prepare the land for wheat. On the other hand, some experiments indicate that the Black Beauty is somewhat the better yielder.

Soy beans, in order to be of value as a nitrogen gatherer, must be inoculated. Very few soils contain the bacteria that live in the nodules on the roots of soy beans. The seed are smooth, and very little inoculation is carried with them. It is therefore necessary to inoculate the seed, or apply inoculated soil to the land.

By far the simplest and most effective way to inoculate soy beans is to glue inoculated soil to the seed. This can be done by using a five per cent. solution. Dissolve six ounces of ordinary furniture glue in one gallon of water. Sprinkle about one pint of this solution over a bushel of seed. Mix the seed by hand or with a shovel until they are sufficiently moist. Now sprinkle over the seed with constant mixing a quart of dry, sifted, inoculated soil. This soil should be taken from a field where soy beans have been thoroughly inoculated. Where growing soy beans for the first time, the inoculated soil can usually be secured from the same source as the seed. The seed are now ready for the drill.

The ground should be prepared very similar to preparing a good seed bed for corn. Where soy beans are seeded on land on which clover has failed, plow the land as soon as the oats are seeded. After plowing, harrow the land, making a good seed bed to get the weeds started. When the weeds are just coming up well, double disc thoroughly, and follow in a few days with the harrow. This operation should be repeated if weather conditions and the season demand it. Thoroughly double disc and harrow just before seeding the soy beans, making sure to kill all weeds.

In case the soy beans follow corn, thoroughly double disc the corn stalks with a sharp disc. As soon as the weeds get a good start, plow the land about the same depth as for corn, then harrow. Do whatever subsequent discing and harrowing may be necessary to destroy weeds and save moisture.

Soy beans should be seeded the last week of May or the first of June, sowing about one bushel of seed per acre, and covering not over two inches deep. There are two methods of seeding that can be followed in the corn belt.

Seed either in rows and cultivate, or sow with a wheat drill 7 or 8 inches apart. Unless the land is practically free from weeds, and one has had some experience with the crop, it will be best to sow the seed in rows any distance apart from 24 inches to three feet.

After the seed has been in the ground three or four days, it is well to harrow the ground thoroughly. When three or four inches high, weed with a weeder. Plan to leave the land as level as possible, which will be a great help when harvest time comes. Weeding should be done twice a week until the beans thoroughly cover the ground. Where seeded in rows, use an ordinary cultivator or a five shovel one-horse adjustable cultivator. Three or four days after cultivating, use the weeder.

Soy bean hay should be cut with a mower when half or more of the pods are fully grown, but before the pods change color in ripening. The plants are allowed to lie in the swath until the leaves are wilted. They must not be allowed to get too dry before raking. The hay can be left in windrows until fairly dry, then put into smaller bunches until cured. The leaves are the most valuable part of the crop except the pods, and great care must be exercised to prevent their loss. The yield of hay is from 1 to 3 tons per acre.

The crop can be allowed to ripen for seed. It can be left in the field until all the leaves have fallen, and then cut with a mower or binder. If cut with a mower, rake and put into bunches. If cut with a binder, shock, but do not put on caps. When dry they are ready to thresh, or else they can be stacked and threshed later. The yield of seed is from 10 to 40 bushels per acre. If cut for seed before too ripe, but just as some of the leaves begin changing color in ripening, the crop furnishes a straw after threshing the beans equal in feeding value to timothy hay.

In order to thresh soy beans use any ordinary threshing machine. Remove concaves and replace with boards. Run the cylinder slightly slower than for small grain, and use more wind. Any thresherman will be able to set his machine to do good work.

Soy beans must be dry when stored for seed, or good ventilation provided. If not thus cared for, they are certain to heat, and are then ruined for seed. Old seed should not be used, as they lose vitality with age very readily. Secure a variety suitable for your purpose.

Inoculate. Seed about one bushel of seed per acre. Do not plant over two inches deep. Work the land so as to get the weeds started and killed. Keep clean, as they are not a lazy man's crop.

Selecting a Laying Stock. There is a laying type of hen that one should select when purchasing birds for the layers. If you will get the long-bodied bird with the low-set keel, keen eye and a large crop, you are likely to get an extra good egg producer.

The bird that gets off the roost the first in the morning and goes there the last thing at night, will make a good showing for herself along the line of egg production. These things should be watched, and the results will justify their correctness in making selections of good layers.

How Lumpy Jaw Spreads. Lumpy jaw is due to a germ, and when pus is discharged from any of the enlargements and falls on the grass or feed of other cows these animals are liable to contract the disease. In this manner a whole herd may be affected if treatment is neglected.

The "Little Big" Sheep. The fashion and judgment of our best breeders decree that our low down blocky type ram, he that weighs "heavier" than we thought, "the little big sheep," is the one which will be sought these days of prime joints of mutton.

Fiber of the Wool. Wool substance is what the wool grower is looking for, provided it is not made up of too coarse fibers, which is not usually the case. Density and fine fibers are usually associated.

Severely Witty. "Henry," remarked Mrs. Henry Peck, "we are going to have some company this evening, and I do wish you would brighten up and look less like an honorary palbearer. Say something humorous."

The company came, and with a few preliminary coughs and winks, which were intended to announce to his wife that the witticism was about to be perpetrated, Henry said timidly:

"Mary."

"Yes, dear, what is it?" asked Mrs. Peck expectantly.

Chilly. A certain member of a Boston club habitually evinces such a frigid demeanor that many of his acquaintances have facetiously averred that "it gives one a cold to shake hands with him."

One evening a group at the club were discussing the disposition of the said member, when a newcomer ventured this:

"Why, gentlemen, I understand that it is the custom in this club when that chap attends a dinner here to ice the claret in order that it may be at the same temperature as the dining room."—Harper's Magazine.

NO WORDS WASTED. A Swift Transformation Briefly Described.

About food, the following brief but emphatic letter from a Georgia woman goes straight to the point and is convincing.

"My frequent attacks of indigestion and palpitation of the heart culminated in a sudden and desperate illness, from which I arose once in mind and body. The doctor advised me to live on cereals, but none of them agreed with me until I tried Grape-Nuts food and Postum."

"The more I used of them the more I felt convinced that they were just what I needed, and in a short time they made a different woman of me. My stomach and heart troubles disappeared as if by magic, and my mind was restored and is as clear as it ever was."

"I gained flesh and strength so rapidly that my friends were astonished. Postum and Grape-Nuts have benefited me so greatly that I am glad to bear this testimony." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

"There's a reason," and it is explained in the little book, "The Road to Wellville," in Pkgs.

Ever read the above letter? A new one appears from time to time. They are genuine, true, and full of human interest.

Reinforced Concrete of Old Rome.
Although concrete has been used for many centuries, it is generally supposed that reinforced concrete is a modern invention. This, however, has been disproved, according to Popular Mechanics by the finding of bronze reinforcing rods in the concrete roof of an ancient Roman tomb, and in the discovery of reinforced concrete in the construction of one of the walls of the old palace of the Louvre, Paris. The reinforced concrete in the latter dates back only 300 or 400 years, but created much comment because the walls were thought to consist entirely of ashlar and quarry stone. The discovery that the stone casing concealed a core composed in part of reinforced concrete was made while workmen were piercing the wall for an elevator installation.

An Indian Day.

In the dew-bespangled sunrise, while the air was caressingly cool, we went forth to ride along the river bank and beside fields of yellow mustard or dun stubble; then, on our return to the shadowed tents, a bath, breakfast, and the day's occupations; then again, in the swift dusk of evening, when furtive jackals rent the twilight stillness with walling and demoniac laughter, or the silver bark of little foxes echoed over the mist-velled rice-fields, while under the moon, we gathered in comfortable deck chairs in a great, dim aisle of the mango grove, while the tents shone orange in the lamplight, to tell sad stories of the deaths of kinds, or listen to the Pollee Chotz Sahib, who had a pretty, sentimental tenor, singing "The Long Indian Day,"—Charles Johnston, in the Atlantic.

For Your Spring Work

Have you learned how "Chicago AA" Portland Cement is made? It is a story of great interest to the man who uses cement. It tells how the raw materials are taken from the quarries; how they are weighed, proportioned, crushed and conveyed to the mills; it describes the "Chicago AA" process of drying, grinding and then burning the raw mixture to a "clinker" and explains in an interesting way, the method of cooling the "clinker" and grinding and re-grinding it, thus producing "Chicago AA" Portland Cement—"the best that can be made."

Read this story:—

It will enable you to better appreciate the superiority of the "Double A" brand—it will guide you in the selection of a cement for your work in the future.

What are the TAXES on Your FARM?

Would they be a nickel more each year if you increased your output one-third?

If WE SHOW YOU that on a moderate investment it will earn you each year at the least 50 per cent outside of the saving of labor, and without figuring the added size of your manure pile, would you entertain a proposition whereby we furnish the article and it shall earn every cent of its cost to you before you pay for it?

$100.00 per Acre Farms Should Produce the Proper Returns.
